

September 26, 2012

Dear Ronaldo Clifton,

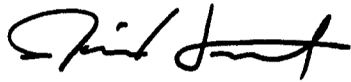

It amazes me each time I see the James B. Hunt, Jr. Library. I have travelled all over the world, and nowhere have I seen a more remarkably beautiful structure with all the capabilities of this library. Your construction efforts have set a new standard for education, technology and engagement.

Through the sweltering heat, constant rain and repeated tours, each and every Skanska worker has taken pride in this project and worked tirelessly to make this building all that it can and should be. There is something special in the air at the Library, and it is obvious to all who visit.

I am so grateful for all that you have done. Your work has not gone unnoticed, and it will leave a legacy for not only the students at North Carolina State University, but for all of North Carolina.

It is the hardworking, passionate people of this state that help us move forward, and you should be proud to be among them. Again, thank you.

Sincerely,

James B. Hunt, Jr.
Governor of North Carolina
1977-1985, 1993-2001